You just became a leader in Reflect Student Ministries! Enter your gender and the focus group you will lead!

You lead the focus group for women! Your weeks are spent planning devotions for them and getting to know them more deeply. This tends to lead to academics taking a backseat sometimes.

After a long week, it's finally Friday. You've been studying all day, so your weekend is free! You have some options available for tonight.

You decide to spend the evening with your boyfriend. He leads a focus group, too, so you don't always get to go out as often as you both want to. Although, after the week you've had, staying in and watching a movie sounds equally appealing.

You've chosen to stay in and watch a movie. You two don't always get to spend a lot of time together, so you want to make the most of it. You have some boundaries in place that you've let your community know about, but a couple of them have gotten a little blurry tonight. You get back to your dorm room late enough that your roommates aren't awake to ask any questions.

It's time for bed. Today was incredibly busy. Are you ready for tomorrow, or do you want to try today again?
